PROTECTIONS AGAINST TRAFFICKING IN PERSONS

Sample Construction Industry Subcontractor and Supplier Self-Assessment Questionnaire

An important part of a due diligence systems approach to preventing forced labor¹ and other supply chain human rights issues is to assess current and prospective subcontractors and suppliers for potential risks. This sample self-assessment tool can help identify potential forced labor risks in how a subcontractor or supplier recruits, selects, and hires workers, the supplier's relationship with labor agents, and how workers are managed. The answer choices for each question are designed to indicate whether the practice meets typical company or industry Codes of Conduct and applicable legal requirements for the prevention of forced labor and other human rights issues. The self-assessment can be used as a subcontractor and supplier screening tool, to develop corrective action plans, or to establish key performance indicators (KPI's) to track ongoing human rights performance.

For each question, several potential answers are provided, some of which represent good management practices (due diligence), while others represent risks to human rights/Code of Conduct compliance. When evaluating how well a supplier is controlling risk, a company needs to look for the presence or absence of good practices, and "at risk" practices. No suggested scoring is provided as the severity of a potential risk will depend on such factors as the region and country where the work is performed, worker nationalities, applicable legal requirements, and customer requirements, among other factors. The evaluation guide provided in Appendix 1 can help guide your review of a self-assessment, as well as offer suggestions for providing feedback to suppliers.

Note: The self-assessment is also an opportunity to collect profile information from suppliers that can be useful in conducting a risk assessment, as is described in Tool 6:

Supply Chain Mapping and Risk Assessment. For construction industry suppliers, supplier profile information might include:

- Supplier name
- Supplier headquarters address
- Supplier production/manufacturing address
- Type of products, raw materials or construction services supplied
- Number of workers employed
- Number of workers hired via labor agents
- Number of workers employed by staffing agencies / labor providers
- Seasonality of services
- Recruitment/Labor Agent (where possible, link labor agents to individual workers contracted)
 - Name of each recruitment/labor agent used
 - Contact information
 - Nationality
 - Nationality of workers provided
 - License number
- Accommodations

APPENDIX 1: INTERPRETIVE GUIDANCE FOR SUPPLIER SELF-ASSESSMENTS

1. RECRUITMENT, SELECTION AND HIRING PROCESSES
Question	Answers with Potential Risk	Interpretive Guidance
Q1.1 Which of the following requirement are included in your company's recruitment, selection and hiring policy?	All of the answer choices are good practices and should be part of a company's hiring policy.	The absence of stated company commitments to preventing violation of worker rights in recruitment, selection, and hiring practices presents a risk of human trafficking, discrimination, and child labor, among other issues.
Q1.2 How do you make sure that your policy requirements are followed?	All of the available answer choices are good/desirable practices.	Companies need to have purely objective methods to select and hire workers. Additionally, companies need some kind of process, such as worker surveys, to monitor the effectiveness of implementation.

Q1.3 Which of the following are included in your job postings?	Potential risk: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Personal characteristics, such as gender, marital status, etc. 	Listing non-job-related characteristics in job descriptions and vacancy announcements is discriminatory and a violation of most legal and Code of Conduct requirements. Additionally, such criteria can eliminate a significant number of qualified job candidates from consideration which may impact the company's ability to meet its business objectives
Q1.4 How does your company recruit, select, and hire workers?	Potential risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • We use external recruitment agents to recruit and hire workers. • We hire some workers directly and use recruitment agents for others. • Use of informal brokers. 	The use of third-party recruitment or labor agents is a legitimate way for companies with limited internal resources to recruit, select, and hire employees. However, the benefits of outsourcing this function can be offset by the risk of losing control over the hiring process — and of potential issues such as charging recruitment fees and unethical contract terms — unless there is strong oversight of agent practices. Informal brokers will be more difficult to monitor and hold accountable to expectations.

Q1.5 How do you recruit and hire foreign migrant workers?	Potential risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Using a recruitment agent in their home (origin) country. • Through a recruitment agent in the destination country. • Use of informal brokers. 	As above, the benefits of outsourcing this function can be offset by the risk of losing control over the hiring process — and of potential issues such as charging recruitment fees and unethical contract terms — unless there is strong oversight of labor agents' practices, which is particularly difficult for origin country agents and brokers. Informal brokers will be more difficult to monitor and hold accountable to expectations.
Q1.6 What kind of training do you provide for company staff responsible for recruitment, selection, and hiring?	Ideally, all of the answer choices should be in place.	If individuals with recruitment, selection and hiring responsibilities are not trained on company and legal requirements and how to objectively interview and select candidates for hire, there is a serious risk of using inconsistent or biased selection criteria, resulting in making the wrong hiring decisions or violating company and legal human rights requirements.

2. USE OF LABOR AGENTS AND EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES
Question	Answers with Potential Risk	Explanation

Q2.1 How do you screen your recruitment agents to determine if they can meet human rights/Code of Conduct requirements before you begin using them?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • We do not use a formal screening process. 	Just as you need to know that a potential supplier can meet your requirements for price, quality, and delivery, you must also know that they are capable of and willing to meet human rights/Code of Conduct and legal requirements. This can only be done properly using a formal vetting/screening process to identify gaps in a supplier's management practices.
Q2.2 What formal performance requirements does your company have for your recruitment agents?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • We require the labor agent to comply with legal requirements only. • We do not have formal contracts with our labor agents. 	If a labor agent is only required to comply with the law, and contracts do not contain explicit human rights/Code of Conduct performance requirements, there is a risk that labor agents' practices will not meet your Code of Conduct requirements. Without a formal contract, there is a risk that your labor agent will not understand or feel obligated to adhere to your company's expectations for socially responsible and legal business practices.

Q2.3 How do you evaluate your recruitment agents' ongoing performance in meeting both human rights/Code of Conduct and applicable legal requirements?	All of the choices are desirable practices. Suppliers should have at least one of them in place.	Screening a labor agent to determine their ability to meet your human rights/Code of Conduct requirements does not guarantee that they will do so over time. Without a systematic, ongoing performance assessment process you run the serious risk of not being aware of, or not proactively addressing, violations resulting from sub-standard labor agent practices.
Q2.4 Which of the following are included in your recruitment agent audit process?	All of the listed items are part of an effective labor agent audit process.	Audits are an essential part of any supplier performance monitoring program, and without such aspects as records reviews and interviews with management and workers, you are unable to identify performance gaps and establish improvement plans.
Q2.5 How do you ensure that recruitment agents correct the issues identified by audits, self-audits, and other evaluations?	All of the listed items are part of an effective recruitment agent audit process.	Without a formal process to track and verify closure of audit nonconformance, there is a significant risk that issues will go unresolved, and the recruitment agent will continue to violate the law and your company's human rights requirements.

Q2.6 How do you communicate your staffing requirements (hiring needs) to your recruitment agent(s)?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • We only tell them the number and categories of workers needed. If selected by itself, or in combination with the above answer: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • We tell them the time by which we need the workers. 	The risk in only providing the number and general types of workers needed or how soon you need them is that the recruitment agent may not apply your human rights and job performance expectations in the hiring process. This may result in human trafficking, discrimination, child labor, and other unintended human rights outcomes. You may also be provided workers who are not fit to perform the work needed to achieve your business objectives.
Q2.7 Do you or your recruitment agents recruit workers from other countries (foreign migrant workers, guest workers, etc.)?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Yes. 	Recruiting foreign migrant workers is a legitimate business strategy, particularly in areas with local labor shortages or where the skill level of the local workforce is inadequate to meet business needs. However, employing foreign migrants typically means that much of the hiring process may be done in other countries by individuals and organizations over which you may have little control or oversight.

Q2.8 Do you or your local (destination country) recruitment agents work with recruiters or agents in the countries where workers are recruited (countries of origin)?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Yes. 	Secondary recruitment recruiters or agents in countries of origin are often informal businesses that are unlicensed and unregulated. They may or may not understand your company's human rights expectations or the legal requirements in their country or yours, which presents the serious risk of human trafficking and other human rights nonconformance.
Q2.9 How do you determine that recruiters and agents in countries of origin can meet both human rights and legal requirements?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Destination country recruitment agents screen the origin country recruiters and agents. In addition, the other listed choices should all be part of the supplier's process for screening origin country agents.	Because of the often-informal nature of labor recruiting in countries of origin, the absence of a thorough screening of origin country recruitment agents or delegating the responsibility to your destination country broker can result in the use of agents that are neither able nor willing to conform to your company human rights expectations or the law.

Q2.10 How do you monitor the human rights and legal compliance performance of origin country recruiters and agents?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • We do not formally monitor the legal compliance performance of origin country recruiters and agents. In addition, the other listed choices should all be part of the supplier's process for monitoring the performance of origin country agents.	The recruiters and agents you use in countries of origin operate remotely and largely independently. Without monitoring them, you risk illegal or unethical practices going undetected and unaddressed.
Q2.11 How much do workers pay your company or either the destination country or origin country recruitment recruiter or agent to get a job with your company?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Workers pay only what is legally required in their home country. • Workers pay only what is legally required in the destination country. • Our company policies specify the maximum amount workers are required to pay. • Workers pay what is legally allowable in the origin or destination country. 	Foreign migrants are particularly vulnerable to exploitation, especially as they are often charged illegal and/or excessive fees. The U.S. Federal Acquisition Regulation: Combating Trafficking in Persons (FAR) and many company and industry Codes of Conduct now prohibit charging recruitment fees. Without a company policy prohibiting recruitment fees and controls in place to ensure workers do not pay fees, your company faces a serious risk of using debt-bonded labor.

Q2.12 What types of fees and expenses are foreign workers required to pay?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Transportation to the destination country (for the job). • Transportation home upon completion of their contract. • Document processing (for example, work permit, visa). • Job application fee. • Medical examination and/or testing. • Skills testing. 	In addition to recruitment fees, migrant workers may be charged for transportation and other expenses that recruitment brokers and employers do not call “recruitment fees.” These expenses are often excessive and illegal and can put workers at risk of debt bondage if they have to borrow money to pay them. This presents your company with both a reputational and compliance risk. Your policies and procedures should clearly define the fees and expenses that workers cannot be charged.
Q2.13 How do the origin country agents or your local (destination country) recruitment agents screen job applicants?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • They use their own judgment to decide which candidates can do the job. 	Without clear stated job requirements and selection criteria, the screening process can be unduly influenced by the biases of the individuals doing the screening. Selection can also be corrupted when recruitment agents give preference to job seekers who are willing to pay a bribe.

Q2.14 Who makes the final selection of which applicants to hire?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The origin country recruiter or agent. • Our local (destination country) recruitment agent(s). 	The more steps removed from direct control of the hiring process, the greater the risk that inappropriate or improper selection practices will be used, with the risk of not meeting the law and your company's labor skills and human rights requirements.
Q2.15 How do you verify that foreign migrants can legally work in the destination country?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Our local (destination country) recruitment agent is responsible for obtaining and verifying the necessary documentation. • The origin country recruiter or agent is responsible for obtaining and verifying the necessary documentation. 	Your company is ultimately responsible for the legal status of migrant workers employed in your operations. Origin country agents may not know the legal requirements in your country. Destination (in-country) recruitment agents may be more concerned with delivering the number of employees your company needs rather than complying with all applicable requirements. To minimize this risk, your company must have a process to ensure the legal status of foreign migrants.

Q2.16 When are workers provided with an explanation of the job duties and terms and conditions of employment?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • In their home country, after they sign the employment contract. • After arrival in the destination country, before they sign the employment contract. • In the destination country, after signing the employment contract. 	If new hires are not provided with a thorough, accurate explanation of the terms and conditions of their employment at your company before they sign the employment contract and before they leave their home country, they may find themselves in a job that they did not accept voluntarily — a red flag for human trafficking. In addition, your company may be in violation of both legal and Code of Conduct requirements.
Q2.17 How does your company ensure that workers understand all the terms and conditions of their employment contract?	All the answer choices should be part of the supplier’s process for ensuring worker understanding.	Workers must fully understand the terms and conditions of the job they are about to accept to ensure that they are making the decision voluntarily.

Q2.18 The worker signs an employment contract with _____.	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Our in-country recruitment agent. • Both the recruiter or agent in their home country and our in-country recruitment agent. • Both my company and our in-country recruitment agent. • Another employer. • We do not use employment contracts. 	Employment contracts are an essential element in ensuring respect of worker rights and should be part of any employer's recruitment, selection, and hiring system, regardless of local legal requirements. It is appropriate for workers to sign employment contracts with your in-country recruitment agent if the recruitment agent is responsible for providing their wages and benefits and for managing their day-to-day work activities. However, without oversight of this process, there is a risk of noncompliance with legal requirements and your company's human rights expectations. When a worker signs contracts with multiple parties, there is a significant risk that the employment terms and conditions in the two contracts will be different. The destination country contract terms often do not include what was promised to the employee by the origin country agent.

Q2.19 What is included in the employment contract?	All of the available choices should be included in worker employment contracts.	Detailed employment contracts are an essential element in ensuring workers enter into employment voluntarily and that they fully understand their legal rights. A contract that includes all the answer choices will help ensure compliance with the U.S. Federal Acquisition Regulation: Combating Trafficking in Persons (FAR) and most other legal and Code of Conduct requirements.
Q2.20 Can workers cancel their employment contracts before they leave their home country?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Yes, but they have to pay a cancellation fee. • No, they must work for the term of their contract. 	If at any time before a migrant worker leaves their home country they decide to decline the job, they must be free to do so. If migrants are required to pay a cancellation fee (other than cost of passport and visa) or required to fulfill their contract term, this increases the risk of human trafficking.

Q2.21 When are workers given a copy of their employment contract?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Less than five days before departure. • Upon arrival in the destination country (location of work). • Workers are not given copies of their contracts. 	The U.S. Federal Acquisition Regulation: Combating Trafficking in Persons (FAR) and many company Codes of Conduct require providing workers with their contracts at least five days prior to departure. This allows enough time for workers to make an informed decision about taking the job. Failure to provide contracts at least five days in advance increases the risk of exploitation (involuntariness).
Q2.22 What kind of training do foreign migrants receive before they leave their home country for work at your company?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Pre-departure training designed and delivered by the destination country recruitment agent. • Pre-departure training designed and delivered by the origin country recruitment agent. • Workers do not receive pre-departure training. 	Pre-departure training that covers all the details about the job and contract terms is essential for the migrant worker to make an informed decision about the job before traveling to another country for employment. Without it, there is a risk of the worker entering into a situation of human trafficking. Additionally, leaving the design and delivery of the training to the discretion of either origin or destination country agents presents the risk that not all the required information will be presented.

3. MANAGEMENT OF MIGRANT WORKERS
Question	Answers with Potential Risk	Explanation
Q3.1 Are there migrant workers* at your company? *Note: this includes both foreign and domestic migrants that are either directly employed by your company or work for a recruitment agent	<no red flag answers>
Q3.2 Who is responsible for coordinating and processing migrant worker documentation when they arrive for work?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The recruitment agent. 	It is appropriate for the recruitment agent to process migrant worker documentation, especially when the employment agreement is between the recruitment agent and migrant. However, without oversight, there is a risk that the recruitment agent's processes may violate your human rights expectations or applicable legal requirements.

Q3.3 How does your company and/or your recruitment agent manage migrant worker identify documents (passports, visas, work permits, proof of age, etc.)?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Workers are required to turn in their documents to the company or the recruitment agent for safekeeping. • Workers voluntarily have the company or the recruitment agent to hold their documents for safekeeping. • The company or recruitment agent keeps the documents; however, workers can retrieve them at any time without delay. • Workers can retrieve their documents when they intend to return to their home country for a visit or when their contract term is over. 	Personal identity documents are the property of the worker. Some companies and recruitment agents retain these documents for “safekeeping” or other reasons. If employees are not in possession of their identity documents, they may not be able to leave the work site, violating their right to freedom of movement and making the company noncompliant with the U.S. Federal Acquisition Regulation: Combating Trafficking in Persons (FAR) and many company and industry codes of conduct.
Q3.4 What is included in the orientation program for new migrant workers when they arrive for work at your facility?	All of the answer choices should be included in the orientation program.	Orientation training for newly arrived workers is essential to their understanding of their legal rights and responsibilities and company rules and procedures. It is also a legal and typical Code of Conduct requirement.

Q3.5 How does the company make sure that workers understood the information provided in the orientation program?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> We do not measure learning or understanding. The answer choices are all elements of an effective training impact assessment program.	Without measuring learning, there is a significant risk that the workers do not adequately understand their rights and responsibilities, impacting both conformance with legal and human rights requirements and the company's business success.
Q3.6 What basic wage are migrant workers paid?	Each of the listed choices is an acceptable basis for migrant worker wages. However, two choices represent potential risk if managed improperly: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> In the absence of a legal minimum wage, the supplier must have a formal process to ensure workers are paid no less than the local industry prevailing wages and benefits. If workers are paid on a piecework basis, there is a risk that wages will fall below the legal minimum if a worker fails to meet the production quota. 	All companies must have a process in place to ensure that all migrant workers are paid a fair and legal wage. In the absence of a legal minimum wage, migrants should be paid the same as local workers performing the same job. Without such a process, there is a significant risk that wage payments will not comply with legal and company Code of Conduct requirements.

Q3.7 Migrant workers are paid a wage premium for _____.	All of the available answer choices should be part of a supplier’s wage system.	All workers must be paid a wage premium for overtime hours and work performed on holidays and other non-scheduled workdays. The absence of this policy not only puts your company at risk of human rights and legal nonconformance, but worker discontent and resentment as well, which can impact productivity and quality.
Q3.8 Who pays for workers’ housing?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Another employer (factory, farm, etc.). • Recruitment agent. • Housing is not provided or arranged for workers. 	Workers’ housing arrangements must be clearly defined in the employment contract. Depending on the type of employment and country of operation, housing must be provided to workers at no cost to them. If workers must pay for housing, they cannot be charged in excess of equivalent local rents. Failure to clearly describe and monitor payment for worker accommodation can be both a legal noncompliance and a nonconformance with company and industry Codes of Conduct.

Q3.9 How does your company ensure compliance with local housing and safety standards?	All of the listed answer choices are appropriate elements of a company's worker housing program.	Failure to have formal policies and procedures (e.g. regular audits and inspections) in place to ensure worker housing meets local standards can result in unsafe or unhealthy conditions and can be both a legal noncompliance and Code of Conduct nonconformance.
Q3.10 Describe the type of social insurance and other benefits provided to migrant workers?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Migrant workers are not provided with social insurance or other benefits. 	All workers are entitled to the social insurance and other benefits required by law and by customer human rights codes. If your compensation and benefits system does not ensure migrant workers are provided with social insurance, such as work accident insurance, and other required benefits, you are at significant risk of noncompliance with requirements. Your company may also face worker discontent and resentment, which can impact productivity and quality.

Q3.11 How do you ensure that migrant workers understand how their wages are calculated?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Workers are free to ask Payroll if they have a question. 	Making sure that all workers understand how they are paid so they can verify the accuracy of their compensation is a fundamental legal and human rights expectation. This is particularly true for foreign migrants who likely do not speak the local language. There is a significant risk of noncompliance with requirements if you do not provide workers with this information.
Q3.12 What kinds of deductions are made from migrant worker wages?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Transportation to and from the workplace. Transportation from the country of origin. Return transportation to the country of origin. Interest charged advances for food, housing, communications, etc. 	Transportation to the destination country (where the work is performed) and return transportation upon completion of the employment contract must be paid by the employer. Additionally, transportation to and from the workplace and workers' housing must also be provided where housing is arranged by the employer. Agricultural workers may be charged for food and water in some contexts. Requiring workers to pay such costs is noncompliant with both legal and human rights requirements.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Recruitment fees. • Visa processing fees. 	Recruitment fees cannot be charged to workers. The U.S. Federal Acquisition Regulation: Combating Trafficking in Persons (FAR) and many company and industry Codes of Conduct prohibit charging recruitment fees to workers.
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Fines for breaking rules. 	Monetary fines for breaking workplace rules are considered disciplinary wage deductions. Systems of compensation and discipline that do not prohibit monetary fines are at risk of noncompliance with legal and human rights requirements.
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Repayment of loans. 	Repayment of loans through payroll deductions indicates a high risk of debt bondage among your migrant workers.
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Uniforms • Tools • Personal protective equipment 	Uniforms, tools, and personal protective equipment are job requirements and must therefore be provided to workers at no cost to them. Charging workers for such items puts workers at risk of being paid less than minimum wage and represents a compliance risk for your company.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Medical services 	Migrant workers must be provided with work accident insurance and medical services free of charge for any job-related injuries or illnesses. Failure to do so may be both a legal and Code of Conduct noncompliance.
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Mandatory savings 	Some companies require migrant workers to have a portion of their salary put in a savings account to provide an incentive to work for the entire contract period or to pay for their transportation home once their contract term is over. Such involuntary withholding of wages represents a risk of human trafficking.
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Food • Housing 	Although workers may be charged for food and housing if part of the employment agreement, such expenses must be at or below local market prices/rates.

Q3.13 Who pays migrant workers' wages?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Our local (in-country) recruitment agent • Another employer 	It is appropriate for recruitment agents to pay migrant workers' wages, especially when the workers' employment contracts are with the recruitment agent. In agriculture, wages may also be paid by another farm or processor. However, without oversight, when the compensation process is outsourced it presents a risk of wage underpayment, unlawful deductions, and non-payment of legally-required benefits, among other issues.
Q3.14 How are migrant workers paid?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • In cash cards (debit cards). • Workers are paid a portion of their wages each pay period and the balance at the end of their contract. • Workers are paid in full upon completion of their contract. • Workers are paid in part or in full in non-cash (i.e. in kind). 	Failure to pay workers in full presents a serious risk of human trafficking as workers cannot leave their jobs without the financial penalty of lost wages. The use of debit cards presents the risk of workers destination less than the minimum wage because of bank fees and other charges whenever the card is used. In-kind payments are non-transparent and subject to abuse.

Q3.15 How many regular work hours do migrant workers work per week?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • More than 40 • More than 48 	Most laws and human rights codes limit regular working hours to no more than 40 or 48 hours per week. Requiring employees to work more than the legal limit without being paid an overtime wage premium represents a serious noncompliance risk in non-agricultural sectors. In agricultural sectors, overtime hours may be unavoidable due to the seasonal nature of crops and needs of livestock. However, in such cases where overtime is possible or probable, the wage rate for those hours should be agreed upon in advance of employment and workers must be compensated for them.
Q3.16 How many overtime hours do migrant workers work per week on average?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • More than 12 • More than 20 	Human rights codes typically limit a workweek to 60 hours total — including overtime. Some jurisdictions have even more restrictive legal requirements, while others do not limit work hours. Workers routinely working in excess of 60 hours or the legal limit represents a serious noncompliance risk for the employer and a health and safety risk for workers.

Q3.17 Do migrant workers have the right to refuse overtime work without penalty?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • No, all workers are required to work overtime as needed to meet our production targets. 	A fundamental principle of human rights is that all overtime must be voluntary unless stated otherwise in a collective bargaining agreement. Involuntary overtime is a serious red flag and could be an indicator of human trafficking; it is a serious violation of human rights standards for the employer.
Q3.18 Do migrant workers receive at least one day (24 consecutive hours) off every week?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • No 	All employees are entitled to at least one day off per week by law and human rights codes. Not providing the required day off represents a compliance risk for the company, a health and safety risk for workers, and a potentially adverse impact on both productivity and quality.
Q3.19 Does your company have a process for migrant workers to report workplace grievances?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • No 	Migrant workers are often subject to unethical practices and mistreatment during recruitment and employment. Without a process for migrants to report abuses, your company runs the risk of being in violation of the law or human rights standards without knowing it, and/or not addressing serious issues that impact worker welfare or safety or business reputation.

Q3.20 Which of the following are part of your company's grievance process for migrant workers?	All of the available answer choices should be part of any supplier's grievance process.
Q3.21 Can migrant workers directly report a grievance to your company without having to go through the recruitment agent?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • No 	In many cases, recruitment agents are responsible for violations of migrant worker rights. Requiring migrant workers to report their grievance to the recruitment agent instead of your company potentially exposes the workers to intimidation and reprisal and could prevent your company from identifying and addressing the source of the abuses.
Q3.22 Does your company have policies and procedures for discipline and termination of migrant workers?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • No 	Discipline and termination procedures that comply with legal and human rights requirements ensure that discipline is applied fairly, humanely, and consistently. The lack of discipline and termination procedures presents the risk of discrimination, inhumane treatment, and intimidation of employees.
Q3.23 Which of the following criteria are part of your process for migrant worker discipline and termination?	All of the available answer choices should be included in a supplier's discipline and termination procedures.

Q3.24 How does your company ensure that supervisors and managers understand your migrant worker discipline and termination policy and procedures?	Potential Risks: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • We do not train our supervisors or managers on discipline and termination. 	Discipline and termination procedures are designed to ensure that discipline is applied consistently, legally, and fairly. When the supervisors and managers responsible for administering discipline are not trained to properly implement the procedures, the company is at serious risk of legal and social noncompliance.
